Not seasonally adjusted unemployment rates fell in all 17 of Michigan's regional labor market areas during February 2021, according to data released from the Michigan Department of Technology, Management & Budget (DTMB).

When breaking the numbers down by county, the combined seasonally unadjusted February 2021 jobless rate of 5.7 percent for the seven-county Southwest Michigan region is down 1.0 percentage points from January 2021. February 2021 jobless rates were led by 4.9 percent in Branch County, 5.0 percent in Kalamazoo County, and 5.2 percent in St. Joseph County. Visit the DTMB’s site to see rankings by county, county labor force numbers, and an overall snapshot of Michigan’s employment.